JANUARY OFFICER REPORTS

by Lady Jane

Seneschal: Need to contact Valdis about getting the Library so it is more accessible to the members. Mark's friend Hiram is now a paid member and Mark is going to broach him about learning to become a herald, he seems to be the right type of person for the position.

as many as possible by Highland War. February Craft night Jane will also teach how to make Mongol Hats. Blase will be talking to members about teaching other classes throughout the year.

Announcement: You Could be Famous!

By Mistress Tonwen ferch Gruffudd Aur, OL

If you have an area of interest that you are passionate about and have a flair for writing, you could be exactly who we're looking for! The editorship of the Compleat Anachronist (CA) is changing hands, and we're actively recruiting contributing writers, reviewers, and illustrators.

The Compleat Anachronist is published quarterly and is dedicated to in-depth exploration of specific topics of medieval life. It is available by subscription to members of the SCA, or can be purchased through the SCA marketplace.

- Prospective Writers: You are invited to send manuscript proposals to the new editor. Proposals may be as short as a few paragraphs that describe your ideas for a manuscript, or as involved as a complete draft of a manuscript. Prospective writers should consider topics that can reasonably fill 40-50 pages of 10 point font text, including illustrations.
- Reviewers: Assist the editor in reviewing manuscripts. Reviewers may recommend changes, deletions, or additions to what the writer has presented, and help the editor check resources and references. We do the best we can to use reviewers whose interests are similar to the topic of the manuscript they are reviewing, so the more reviewers we have, the better.

- Illustrators: We're looking into the feasibility of using photographs in the CA. However, there may be times that the author of a manuscript is unable or chooses not to use photographs. Illustrators are needed to help authors produce line drawing and other artwork for their manuscripts.

If you are interested in taking part in some exciting changes planned for the CA, please contact the new editor:

ARS CAIDIS

by THE CAIDIN

The new Ars Caidis is out! This issue is "Persona," and is $5. I sold out at Festival of the Rose but am printing and binding more, and will have them with me or the next Shire meeting. I also have earlier copies available at $3 apiece.

You too can contribute to AC. I'm going to be keeping the themed issues but also using articles on other subjects, so if have or can write an article on an arts or sciences theme, I would love to have it. I also publish period style poetry. Upcoming themes include Scribal Arts for this spring, Performance Art for summer, Ghost Stories for fall (my favorite!) and Weapons for winter. And remember, I do accept articles on other subjects!

There will be no Garb Gathers in February due to War. Those of you going to war have fun.

PROJECTS AND PLANS

Now that THL Caitlin is back, work can proceed on the Shire Persona Project. I will be stalking you (oh excuse me, I mean politely inquiring) to help you / encourage you / tie you down / until you get your persona down on paper.

The background of this is that I am collecting the persona write-ups of as many Shire members as I can and putting them online — with permission, of course! You can find Persona and other links here:

www.ctaylor-co.com/SCA/

Home.htm.

Banners will also be going on all year.

Non-Alcoholic Drinks for the SCA

Brought to you by THL Caitlin

In honor of the Kingdom admonition to stop drinking at dry sites for Pete's sake!!! I have collected some non-alcoholic recipes that sound rather lovely. These are from Stefan's Florilegium, the incredible resource from THL Stefan li Rous. The recipes are from various authors.

Norse Spiced Cider — LORO THORFINN

My personal favorite: Norse spiced cider. (Not necessarily period)

- 1 gallon of fresh-pressed cider (there is a version with spring cider which is slightly alcoholic)

- 2 cups of white wine vinegar.
- 2 pounds of honey.
- 1 lemon, diced into .25" cubes. (include the rind!)
- 2 tbsp of ground cloves.
- 1 tbsp of ground cinnamon.
- 1 tbsp of ground ginger. (optional. Sometimes causes a bitter taste)
- .25 cup of whichever mint you prefer.

Set the cider to simmering. Dissolve in the honey. let cool for a bit, add in the vinegar. Simmer on low heat while stirring in the spices. Raise the heat a bit, and serve hot. Each cup should have a sprinkling of mint o'er the top as it's served.

As this drink sits on the hearth, it grows in potency....be wary of quaffing the dregs! (Thou, 'tis said that the bottom of the pot will rid a man of the chills of the deepest of winters with but a sip...)

For a summer drink, I like to mix a quart of apple cider with 1 cup of white wine vinegar, fill the rest of the bottle with honeywater (water with a fair bit of honey dissolved into it) and let it steep with commercially prepped mint teabags in the sun for a day. Good served chilled around a bardic fire.

Thorfinn Halfblind (Ken Burnside), Marche of Ered Sul, Atenveldt

Twilsey — Mistress Rowan

One of the 'lower class' drinks was twilsey: plain or flavored vinegars and water. Sounds nasty but is really quite refressing. [Raspberry vinegar makes my favorite. Just go easy on the vinegar until you find the taste you like. :}]

Her Excellency Mistress Rowan O'Callighan, Barony of Blatha an Oir, Kingdom of An Tir

Coriander Water — Lord Jason

Another pleasant and inexpensive period, non-alcoholic beverage is Coriander water. The taste is subtle, but quite pleasant. Coriander is a spice readily available in many grocery stores. It is a hard, round seed that looks sort of like little brown balls about half to one-third the size of a green pea. A Viscountess I knew many years ago (in AS 12 or so) said she had found reference in period to water flavored with Coriander. The way she did it was to place the seeds whole in a pitcher of water, preferably overnight. When serving, decant carefully so most of the seeds remain in the pitcher. They can be re-used several times at a given event by refilling the pitcher. Once the seeds are soaked, they will flavor the fresh water quite readily. Rinse out and discard the seeds at the end of the event, so they don't spoil in the decanter.

HLS Jason of Rosaria, Ansteorra

Fruit Vinegar—Dame Aoife

Aoife Here, with a recipe for, "Sherbet", "Fruit Vinegar" or "Shrub" as it is known in Jolly Old England. This one was simply gobbled up at the Known World Party last Pennsic. It works best with raspberries or blackberries. Blueberries are good, but the beverage does not turn blue (it is clear, and also tastes kind of "green"). I haven't tried strawberries, either. It also has the added virtue of being extremely simple to make!

For the Fruit Vinegar:

Take equal parts (by volume) of vinegar (white or cider), and your favorite soft fruit. Lightly mash the fruit (stones or large seeds removed), pour on the vinegar, and cover tightly. Every day for 5 days, stir the mixture in the morning and at night. After 5 days, pour the vinegar into a strainer with a bowl beneath. Squeeze the fruit with a spoon or your hands to extract ALL the juice. Discard the fruit.

To make the Fruit Syrup from your Fruit Vinegar, add equal amounts of sugar (by volume) as you have fruit vinegar. Stir gently until sugar is dissolved. This in itself is a good sauce for summer desserts. this will store for months on the shelf with no refrigeration. Small Lumps may form due to pectin. This is OK, they will dissolve.

To make Sherbet (ie: Shrub) from your syrup, pour 1/2 oz of syrup over water and ice to make a total of 8 ozs (that's 1/2 oz syrup to about 7 oz of cold liquid). Bubbly water makes this even nicer. Adjust the amount of syrup to taste, of course, but too much will make the flavor waaaaay too intense.

Dame Aoife
